THE LOYAL AND REBEL SIDES [illegible].—The Boston Journal observes that while there has been a retrograde in the capability of the rebel commanders in the west there has been either an improvement with every change on our side, or at least there has been no deterioration in any case. On the rebel side, Gen. A. Sidney Johnson, who fell at Pittsburg Landing, was the best of their western commanders; then came Bragg, of no mean ability; next, Joe Johnson, in whom the Confederacy cherished a "high hope," but realized "a high having," and last, Hood, a fighter of dash and courage, but with not half the intellect of Johnson. On our side we had Buell, who lost the confidence of the country, and was superseded, with immense advantage by Rosecrans; then Gen. Grant is popularly believed to have been another improvement in the command; and finally Sherman, as to whom there were at first misgivings, but who seems nevertheless to have fully sustained the reputation of the place which he fills. At this rate a few more changes would make a decided contrast in the generalship of the two sides. It is singular that the first commanders of the rebel armies east and west were their ablest men. The killing of one of them has been as good as a great victory. On the contrary, experience has shown that the success of our cause in no way depends upon the personal safety of any General. Our material for commanders is inexhaustible, while that of the rebels is nearly used up. The fall of Lee would seal the doom of the Confederacy. This arises from our superior educational and social system. Who, therefore, but a Northern rebel, would would say that we cannot conquer them?

THE DOOM OF THE CONFEDERACY.—Sir Archibald Allison, in his "Principles of Population," lays down the principle through which every one can read the unavoidable doom of the Confederacy. We quote:

"If public happiness has not established the balance of nature it will be righted by the sword. The destiny of every State may be read from the past history of the world—it is doomed to destruction unless it has developed the principles which render permanent existence consistent with human happiness. The length of its duration is measured by the degree in which it has attained the same objects; a longer or shorter period is assigned in proportion as it has contributed to the increase or diminution of public felicity."

From this it follows that no people can build up a nation founded on slavery; and slavery can continue in the South only by the success of the Copperheads in compromising with the South. It is also true that such a compromise would bring our whole Republic under the doom pronounced by history and philosophy, from which there could be no escape but through another ordeal of bloody baptism. As but little more fighting will be necessary to "develope the principles which render permanent existence consistent with human happiness," and establish their empire all over the continent, it follows that we are under grave responsibilities to the present and the future to now finish the work which iniquity has prepared for us.

According to the London Spectator, which devotes an elaborate article to the subject, the available fighting strength of England is small. Nominally, there are 84,000 regular troops, 112,000 militia and 150,000 volunteers, but really not more than 50,000 are available for foreign service, and of these but 20,000 would be troops of the line.

No man ever yet saw an American who hated slavery yet upheld the rebellion, and no one ever saw an American who justified and who wished to perpetuate slavery who had not at least a speaking tenderness for the rebel cause. For all practical purposes, the rebellion and slavery are related as mother and child.

ARMY pies are so terribly tough that the soldiers call them leather pies. A poor fellow of Grant's army, whose arm had just been amputated, was being carried past a stand the other day where an old woman was selling pies, when he raised himself in the ambulance and called out: "I say, old lady, are those pies sewed or pegged?"

It is reported that among the heaviest individual orders for United States five twenty bonds, recently executed in the London market, and pointedly referred to by the London Times and Herald, was one from the O'Donoghue, an Irish representative in the Imperial Parliament, whom Reverend Henry Ward Beecher, on his return from England, expressly mentioned as one of our staunchest friends in the British Islands.

THE MUDSILLS IN THE SOUTH.—The Chattanooga Gazette thus discourses on the effects of Northern industry in that city: "The mudsills of society make themselves felt in a great many ways, but in none more than in the grand and lasting effects produced by mechanical labor and skill. A liberal sprinkling of 'greasy mechanics' in any particular locality, will not be found to detract much from the respectability of the place, except where absurd notions on the question of social ethics prevail. The most high-toned and chivalrous Southern fire-eater would not object to the changes in the way of public improvements going on at present in this place, all brought about by the 'hated Yankees.' In the large inclosure connected with the railroad depot, the authorities are erecting several substantial and extensive buildings to be used as repair shops and engine houses, and which will very likely be of vast utility long after the war is over and the rebellion wiped out. We shouldn't wonder if the war should develop more energy and enterprise (imported) in the South than she has ever known in her palmiest days."

Admiral Buchanan, who has been taken prisoner by our forces at Mobile, was commandant at the Washington Navy Yard in 1861. He resigned on the 19th of April, and afterward asked to be restored, but his request was refused. He commanded the Merrimac in her attack on our fleet in Hampton Roads, and in the battle with the Monitor, and blew her up when Norfolk was occupied by Gen. Wool.

The State Fair.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DAILY OREGONIAN.]

SALEM, Sept. 26, 1864.

For some days numbers have been arriving here from the country and camping near the Fair grounds, and on Monday morning an almost constant string of vehicles came pouring in from almost all directions. A large delegation from Lane county, containing many carriages, wagons and horsemen, came in after breakfast, and were greeted by the strains of the Capital Brass Band as they passed through town. Soon after, quite a large procession of carriages came down the hill from the south with colors flying, and the incessant roll of carriage wheels bringing in fresh arrivals of sight-seers has lasted ever since, and the vicinity of the Fair grounds furnishes an interesting sight, as the woods are dotted with camps, and several thousands of men, women and children are inhabiting the lately so quiet precincts of Salem prairie about a mile from the southern limit of the town, while the town itself is filled to overflowing and a spare bed is simply an impossibility.

GOOD WEATHER FOR THE FAIR.

The showers of the past week prepared everything beautifully for the season of the Fair, and the weather is all that could be desired, just the temperature one would have wished, and very little fear is entertained of any change that shall prove unpropitious. The roads are in excellent order, and the hundreds of vehicles traveling from town to the Fair grounds, roll along without raising any dust. The grounds are of course in excellent condition, and the track could not well be improved.

THE TWO FAIRS IN [illegible].

This first day of the Fair amounts to little that is particularly capable of description. The State Fair is in embryo and the Sanitary Fair has not yet become visible to the public, and the great attraction lay in the amusements prepared to take the public; the stands and booths for the sale of eatables, drinkables, and things saleable of every description. The multitude of Oregonians, and even the crowd of Colonels, Brigadiers and their brilliant staffs, were subjects of admiration. Then, too, there were some ten or eleven companies of home foot and dragoons parading on the ground, and wandering privates nearly as numerous as staff officers.

THE SANITARY KITCHENS.

But when dinner time came the hungry public found particular satisfaction in patronizing the Sanitary Kitchen, where excellent preparations had been made, and extensively patronized to feed the hungry "well fed," and excellently did they [illegible] too, for half a dollar, as I can personally testify; and very much credit is due to Mr. and Mrs. Davenport, who have, as I understand, superintended and borne the weight of care to provide all the materials, and machinery, of course necessary to at once feed some two or three hundred.

To-day was but the beginning, the crowd has not arrived here yet—and the pretty waiters in their head dresses of blue, aprons white, and sashes red, emblematical of all know what, will to-morrow become more used to their new but decidedly useful occupation and things will go off in the finest style. BOILS.

WE READ THAT ONE OF the sorest afflictions that the patient Job was called upon to bear was that of boils, and they have been found to be, from that time to the present, the most troublesome and painful of visitors. We have known instances where individuals were sure to have these eruptions break out upon them once a month at least. They show an impure state of the blood, and that humor of some kind is lurking there, and the surplus of corruption is actually forced to the surface of the body, making its appearance in the form of Boils. Now, is it not best at once to purify the system? Do you ask what will do this? We answer, Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup. It is curing humors in every form, and there is not a State in the Union where it has not accomplished the most astonishing cures.

THE LOYAL AND REBEL STRATEGIC SKILL.—The Boston Journal observes that while there has been a retrograde in the capability of the rebel commanders in the west there has been either an improvement with every change on our side, or at least there has been no deterioration in any case. On the rebel side, Gen. A. Sidney Johnson who fell at Pittsburg Landing, was the best of their western commanders, then came Bragg of no mean ability next Joe Johnson, in whom the Confederacy cherished a "high hope" but realized [illegible] a low [illegible] and last, Hood, a fighter of dash and courage, but with not half the intellect of Johnson. On our side we had Buell, who lost the confidence of the country and was superseded with immense advantage by Rosecrans; then Gen. Grant is popularly believed to have been another improvement in the command, and finally Sherman, as to whom there were at first misgivings but who seems nevertheless to have fully sustained the reputation of the place which he fills. At this rate a few more changes would make a decided contrast in the generalship of the two sides. It is singular that the first commanders of the rebel armies east and west were their ablest men. The killing of one of them has been as good as a great victory. On the contrary experience has shown that the success of our cause in no way depends upon the personal safety of any General. Our material for commanders is inexhaustible, while that of the rebels is nearly used up. The fall of Lee would seal the doom of the Confederacy. This arises from our superior educational and social system. Who therefore but a Northern rebel would would say that we cannot conquer them?

THE DOOM OF THE CONFEDERACY.—Sir Archibald Alison in his "Principles of Population" lays down the principle through which every one can read the unavoidable doom of the Confederacy. We quote:

"If public happiness has not established the balance of nature it will be righted by the sword. The destiny of every State may be read from the past history of the world—it is doomed to destruction unless it has developed the principles which render permanent existence consistent with human happiness. The length of its duration is measured by the degree in which it has attained the same objects; a longer or shorter period is assigned in proportion as it has contributed to the increase or diminution of public felicity."

From this it follows that no people can build up a nation founded on slavery, and slavery can continue in the South only by the success of the Copperheads in compromising with the South. It is also true that such a compromise would bring our whole Republic under the doom pronounced by history and philosophy, from which there could be no escape but through another ordeal of bloody baptism. As but little more fighting will be necessary to "develope the principles which render permanent existence consistent with human happiness and establish their empire all over the continent, it follows that we are under grave responsibilities to the present and the future to now finish the work which mighty has prepared for us.

According to the London Spectator, which devotes an elaborate article to the subject, the available fighting strength of England is small. Nominally, there are 84,000 regular troops, 102,000 militia and 160,000 volunteers but really not more than 50,000 are available for foreign service, and of these but 20,000 would be troops of the line.

No man ever yet saw an American who hated slavery yet upheld the rebellion, and no one ever saw an American who just hated and who wished to perpetuate slavery who had not at least a sneaking tenderness for the rebel cause. For all practical purposes, the rebellion and slavery are related as mother and child.

ARMY pies are so terribly tough that the soldiers call them leather pies. A poor fellow of Grant's army whose arm had just been amputated, was being carried past a stand the other day where an old woman was selling pies, when he raised himself in the ambulance and called out, "I say, old lady are those pies sewed or pegged?"

THE MECHANICS IN THE SOUTH.—The Chattanooga Gazette thus discourses on the effects of Northern industry in that city: "The fruitful ills of society make themselves felt in a great many ways, but in none more than in the grand and lasting effects produced by mechanical labor and skill. A liberal sprinkling of greasy mechanics in any particular locality will not be found to detract much from the respectability of the place, except very absurd notions on the question [illegible] prevail. Some six cook stoves are in operation, and as many cooks and excellent stewards are employed, and the many tables extend through an [illegible] building of very large [illegible] one a double extension [illegible] spaces and the piles of [illegible] of flour and other [illegible] been donated, speak well for the liberality of [illegible] gon and especially of Portland and Salem [illegible] who so far have done well for the Sanitary cause.

I shall endeavor to do full justice to all the counties and shall therefore refrain from particularizing until I can do so correctly.

The receipts to day [illegible] amounted to some $400 at the door of the dining room.

A SANITARY [illegible]

Specimens from [illegible] Basin, in Baker county, Canyon City and John Day Creek, Owyhee, are being arranged for a raffle, containing over 4[illegible] prizes ranging in value from five dollars to over $250 each and amounting in the aggregate to $7[illegible] on which it is expected to realize at least $2,000 in gold, and which will add very much to the interest and profit of the Sanitary cause. I will say the Sanitary Fair is bound to be a success and a great success too.

WHAT IS COMING

The week will be enlivened by races for premiums to be run over the mile course. The parade of military of which there are already some eleven companies in camp and there will be a thousand things besides that will be deserving of report and which are not in condition to notice now.

WHERE THE PEOPLE COME FROM.

I have met on the Fair ground, men all the way from Owyhee, from the banks of Snake river, from all over Oregon and from California, and the prospect is that this will be a better attended and more interesting occasion than any that has preceded it.

SALEM, Sept. 28, '64.

To day the crowd at the Fair Grounds fully doubled the number there yesterday and the lowest estimate places the number in attendance at fifteen thousand. Already more than $6,000 have been realized by the receipts of the Agricultural Society.

THINGS NOT IN FAIR ORDER YET.

I intended to commence taking the items down in order to day, and take your readers through the Pavilion in good order, but shall wait until to morrow when the arrangements will be better and all articles in their place.

The same with regard to the stock which had not all arrived to day.

THE MILITARY DISPLAY

The military display is very creditable, and will deserve a particular notice after the grand Dress Parade of Friday next. There is no discount on the soldierly qualities of the Portland boys, who command general attention and respect and are all right.

SANITARY [illegible]

The Sanitary profits already amount to over $2,000, and the Fair will prove as grand a success as the most ardent could expect. If the lotteries of specimens paintings [illegible] off well, the profits will reach $10,000 and sound well for Oregon abroad.

ACCIDENTS

It is stated that several men were badly injured by a collision on the road this evening, when two carriages were broken up. It is said whisky was aboard one of them in large quantities. It is also said that some one was knocked down with a slung-shot and robbed of $60 00 last night in the Fair grounds—though many doubt it [illegible]

WE READ THAT ONE OF the sorest afflictions that the patient Job was called upon to bear was that of Boils and they have been found to be from that time to the present, the most troublesome and painful of visitors. We have known instances where individuals were sure to have these [illegible] break out upon them once a [illegible] that at least. Launch of a New Steamer at Astoria.—Capt. [illegible] new steam boat was most handsomely and successfully launched at o'clock a. m. yesterday, amid the joy of an expectant crowd who had gathered to witness the operation. The steamer [illegible] Vancouver with the Regimental Band of the Washington Territory Infantry numbering [illegible] from Fort Vancouver, and quite a number of ladies and gentlemen who were taken [illegible] the ship yard. Small boats were also [illegible] the scene. When the proceeding was [illegible] the word was given the ropes were cut and the stately steamer glided into the water with [illegible] the band playing. [illegible] All the steam [illegible] The new steamer has received the name of [illegible] for the daughter of W. H. [illegible], whose untiring efforts as engineer in the [illegible] Turnbull has won [illegible]. The new craft is decidedly [illegible] feet long with a beam of [illegible] feet [illegible]. Her model is shaped for rapidity [illegible] the water she draws 22 inches light. [illegible] boiler which was recently [illegible] of steam, with full satisfaction to the [illegible] Inspector of steamboats [illegible] cylinders [illegible] a wheel 17 feet in diameter [illegible] She will now be brought to the [illegible] river and quickly finished for the trade.

The City Survey.—We allude [illegible] apparent great mistakes that have been [illegible] in the city surveys somewhere, at sometime, in the history of our settlement, which we were [illegible] account for but which show that the [illegible]. We have since passed over a portion of the ground brought in question and have had the [illegible] discrepancies pointed out and explained [illegible] which it occurs that the mistake [illegible] with the original surveyors, at a time when it was [illegible] impossible for man to penetrate the [illegible] standing in such new lot times. The calculations allowing for an excess of land were probably but at all times sufficient, and in certain parts of the city there was excess but again there is a difference. The greatest difference in the lines appears to be on Fourth street. There never has yet [illegible] been a legal survey of the city [illegible]. When property has changed hands the description has been by lots and blocks, and improvements have been made in [illegible] haphazard manner. Now the difficulty is attempted of straightening out the lines, and [illegible] careful examination we are better informed of the subject, and feel convinced that it is right, will be attended with less trouble than at first expected and finally result with profit to the city. We would not discard a good design nor chide the property-owners of our people, but the exceeding [illegible] of doing things has so long prevailed in Portland that we became electrified at seeing anything done right. From the adoption of the new city charter proper surveys will be accepted by the [illegible].

The Hebrew New Year.—The Hebrew New Year will be celebrated to-morrow and the day following, commencing this evening, for, as is well known, the Hebrews celebrate their festivals from eve to eve, reckoning as our Anglo-Saxon forefathers did, the eve to the following day. The character of the Festival is both retrospective and [illegible]. It calls man—we say man as the appeal in the Hebrew liturgy is quite cosmopolitan—to [illegible] his Creator, good sustainer (Providence), his lawgiver, and his judge; hence the biblical names of the day are "Day of Memorial," and "Day of Shouting." The latter name is given to it in reference to the symbol of the day which is the blowing of a cornet, the high symbolical import of which is known to the readers of the Bible. From this brief sketch the solemnity of the day is apparent, in fact, it is the most solemn day of the Hebrew calendar, the Great Day, or the Day of Atonement, which [illegible] the final entry of man into the world [illegible] and to call the worshiper to prepare for the solemn occasion.

A Fatal Case of Hemorrhage.—A stranger died in the city at 8 o'clock last night from the effects of bleeding at the lungs. He had just arrived from the [illegible] country and was intending to leave by the California steamer, but when he reached the [illegible] he was taken suddenly to bleed at the lungs, and returned up Front street to [illegible] when he fell upon the sidewalk, and died two hours afterward. Dr. Elwert was summoned to attend him and did all in his power for the poor fellow but it was of no avail. From papers on his person taken charge of Messrs. Burnside & Co. we learn that his name was B. F. Southwick, and residence [illegible] county, Massachusetts.

A Good Thought.—Our friend Rev. W. D. J. [illegible], who, as our readers are aware, has recently arrived in Oregon to make it his home [illegible] for the past three years Chaplain in [illegible] army—has consented to visit many of the towns in the State and lecture on topics connected with the war [illegible]. Mass forms to bespeak for him [illegible] audiences; the importance of the subjects and the [illegible] of the speaker with each is sufficient to [illegible] full houses.

After the Rarity of Christian Charity.—We are informed that during the closing moments of [illegible] on the streets of our city [illegible] it was difficult to procure a place [illegible] of a roof for him—when he was finally kindly [illegible] taken in by Williams & Hudson [illegible] and expired in [illegible] minutes. [illegible] "Right and justice point with [illegible]" refusing [illegible] under such circumstances.

No Cause for Complaint.—It is rumored that the City Council framed the new charter [illegible]. This is not so. The members of [illegible] the instrument in open session [illegible] and publicly invited everybody [illegible] to witness their work. There was [illegible] in the matter, as not [illegible] the meetings have [illegible] came to complain just now.

Sink or Swim.—It is a case of life or death with our city at the present time. The enemies of the [illegible] can make sure work of its ruin [illegible] the charter. Let the Multnomah delegation keep their record clear in the councils of the State in this important question.

A Duel by the Taps.—Two young men in our city of not overly smooth temperaments, are now [illegible] for a duel. One challenged and the other accepted, but the preliminaries have not been arranged fully. We understand [illegible] that [illegible] to settle the [illegible] according to the rules of English prize fighting [illegible] $150 [illegible] but [illegible] wishes to dispose of the matter in a regular duello form.

The New Charter.—We understand that a few persons—large property holders in the city—are about to petition the legislature to reject the new city charter with a view to having it [illegible] referred to a vote of the people [illegible].

Re-Opened.—The Temperance House [illegible] in the Pioneer block yesterday with [illegible] guests. The Pioneer will be [illegible] under the supervision of the proprietor [illegible] Pearce House, but will be kept [illegible] The principal feature [illegible] the [illegible] House—which [illegible] profitable.

Wooden [illegible] streets—the property owners [illegible] question is easily disposed of [illegible] and for the building of their [illegible] they will soon be [illegible].

Departure of the Steamer Sierra Nevada.—[illegible] ship Sierra Nevada sailed for Victoria [illegible] San Francisco last evening. She carried [illegible] tons of freight and $22,000 in treasure.

There was no session of the Council [illegible] as a majority of the members [illegible] the Fair at Salem.

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a Cough or "Slight Cold" in its first stage; that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs. EXPLOSION AND LOSS OF LIFE.—At [illegible] on the 12th of August, three boilers in the Eagle Mills exploded with terrific force. The heavy machinery and timber were thrown hundreds of feet into the air; portions of the boilers, weighing several hundred pounds, were forced through the roof and carried entirely over a two-story house some rods distant, and landed in the street. A heavy piece of iron crashed through the roof of a dwelling and fell within a few feet of where a lady was sitting. The boilers were situated between the distillery and mill. One side of the latter, a very strong building, was forced in, and the entire structure, four stories high and filled with heavy machinery, was moved bodily from its foundations. The immense smoke-stack was thrown down, and the scene presented a mass of ruins. Two persons were killed outright, two others so badly hurt that they cannot survive, while several others were more or less injured. One man was blown a distance of fifty feet, landing under a portion of the boiler, from which he was taken alive, his flesh burned to a crisp, clothing stripped off and limbs broken. The cause of the accident was want of water in the boilers, but the engineer, a faithful person who has been in the employ of the Thayers for fifteen years, was at his post and was killed; therefore the reason why the water was allowed to get low can never be known. The loss is estimated at from twenty to thirty thousand dollars. The works are to be rebuilt immediately, workmen being now engaged in removing the debris. The names of the killed are James Howard, Andrew Stevens, Michael Sullivan, [illegible] Fertz. Those badly injured are Charley Richards, [illegible] and A. F. Hickman.

SHAKSPEARE ALWAYS VIRTUOUS.—Coleridge says rightly that there was not one really vicious passage in all Shakspeare. There are coarse things, for the customs and the language of the time were coarse. But there is nothing rotten at the root, nothing insidious in the suggestion. Vice never walks abroad in the mental twilight wearing the garb of virtue. You hear the voices of Wrong and Right, Truth and Error in his works, but there is no confusion of tongues for the confounding of sense. He has no softness for sentimental sinners, such as Goethe allows for his "Faust," and lets down no drawbridge at the last moment to help them over the dark gulf. His lines are drawn as sharply as is the Scriptural decree that the tree shall lie as it falls. He has infinite pity for the suffering and struggling and wounded by the way. The most powerful and pathetic pleadings on the behalf of Christian charity that are to be found anywhere out of the New Testament have been spoken by Shakspeare. He takes to his large, warm heart much that the world usually casts out to perish in the cold. There is nothing too poor or too mean to be embraced within the circles of his sympathies. He sees the germ of good in that which looks all evil to the careless passer-by, for his eyes are large with love and have its "precious seeing." If there be only the least little redeeming touch in the most abandoned character, he is sure to point it out. After all, it is the best hearts that are the truest mirrors even of this world, for it is God's world, bad as we have managed to make it.—London Quarterly Review.

HOW COLUMBUS LOOKED.—The personal appearance of Columbus was not a bad index of his character. His general air expressed the authority which he knew so well how to exercise. His light grey eyes kindled easily at subjects of interest. He was tall and well formed. His complexion was fair and freckled, and inclined to ruddy. Trouble soon turned his light hair grey, and at thirty years of age it was quite white. Moderate in food, simple in dress, temperate in language, bearing himself with courteous and gentle gravity, religious without being a formalist, repressing his irritable temper with a lofty piety, he was the model of a Christian gentleman. The devout reference of his successes to the Divine favor, with which he concludes the report of his first voyage to the sovereigns of Castile, is highly characteristic of the man.—Dickens' Once a Week.

It is well known that the medicinal effect of Protoxide of Iron is lost by even a very brief exposure to air, and that to maintain a solution of Protoxide of Iron, without further Oxidation, has been deemed impossible.

IODINE WATER.

IODINE WATER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT DIScovery of modern chemistry; and it is impossible to over-estimate its influence as a remedial agent. Iodine has been considered the most useful article in Materia Medica, and many of the most scientific and practical chemists and physicians have investigated its effects upon the human system. It is a fact upon the

HEART,

LIVER, KIDNEYS,

DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM,

and to have great control over

SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.

Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation, it remained almost useless, until Dr Henry Anders, a physician and chemist of New York, after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a chemical process which enabled him to dissolve without a solvent. This, considered impossible by the scientific world, is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr. J. R. Chilton of this city, and Prof. Booth, U. S. Mint, Philadelphia. The importance of this discovery was so highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical Journals, and its use recommended to practitioners (see "American Medical Monthly," July 6, 1856, page 76.)

PURE IODINE IN PURE WATER.

This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer, Heart, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc.

AS A TONIC

Its operation is evinced by strengthening the digestive organs and increased nutrition of the body is the result of the supplement of Iodine. The patient recovers flesh, strength and color; hitherto pale, relaxed and feeble, he becomes firm, strong and florid.

Full directions accompany each bottle.

From the army hospital—the bloody battle-field—the mansion of the rich and humble abode of the poor—from the office and the sacred desk—from the mountain top, distant valley and far-off islands of the ocean—from every nook and corner of the civilized world—is pouring in the evidence of the astonishing effects of DRAKE'S PLANTATION BITTERS. Thousands upon thousands of letters like the following may be seen at our office:

[illegible], WIS., Sept. 15, 1863.

[illegible] I have been in the army hospitals for fourteen months—speechless and nearly dead. At Alton, Ill., they gave me a bottle of Plantation Bitters. [illegible] bottles restored my speech and cured me. [illegible] C. A. FLAUTS.

The following is from the manager of the Union Home School for the Children of Volunteers:

The Plantation Bitters make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya Bark, Wintergreen, Sassafras, Roots, Herbs, &c., all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix Rum.

S. T.—1860.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try them.

They are recommended by the highest medical authorities, and are warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure and harmless.

NOTICE.—Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters in bulk or by the gallon is a swindler and impostor. It is put up only in our patent log cabin bottle. Beware of bottles refilled with imitation deleterious stuff, for which several persons are already in prison. See that every bottle has our private United States Stamp over the cork unmutilated, and signature on steel plate side label.

Sold by respectable dealers throughout the habitable globe.
